I got my MEd. and PhD from University of Pittsburg, PA, USA in the area of Social Studies Education. Currently, I am a faculty member of Ataturk University, Kazim Karabekir Education Faculty, Department of History Teaching. My research interest includes ICT, computers, video games, online archives, and virtual museums in History teaching.

I would like to contribute to the work of EUROCLIO through:

I've been following EUROCLIO's works in many countries. What appeals to me most in EUROCLIO's works is the non-traditional perspective that you try to bring in this subject, such as theme based curriculum, democratic and multiple voice history textbooks, student centered and skill based history instruction. I would like to contribute to the work of EUROCLIO through my experience in this area both as a faculty member and as a former teacher, my communication and group work skills. I participated a few EUROCLIO meetings in Turkey and I am aware of the Activity examples book, but what I think what we need most in this area is an theme based history textbook example. So I will be very glad if I could find opportunity to work with EUROCLIO to address this issue.
